

Gemeni suggested the following voice messages in case smoking park-goers are detected:

Option 1: The Classic, No-Nonsense Style

"Eh, excuse me. You've entered a designated non-smoking zone. Smoking is strictly prohibited here, you know? The fine is up to $1,000. So, please stub it out and use a proper bin, lah. Don't say I never warn you. Enjoy the rest of your day!"

Option 2: The "Uncle/Auntie" Jingle Style

"Puff, puff, don't puff here, please! Or your wallet will be feeling the squeeze! Hello, this park is for fresh air, not smoke. So please put out your cigarette, before you kena saman, leh? Got it? Good! Thank you for helping to keep our park clean!"

Option 3: The Modern, Witty Style

"Congratulations on triggering our state-of-the-art 'Don't Smoke in the Park' alert system.

Unfortunately, smoking in this designated area has a zero-star rating. Please note, the park's terms and conditions include an on-the-spot fine. To avoid an unpleasant transaction, please extinguish your cigarette immediately. Thank you for your cooperation."
